During today's Google Nexus press event, the company announced devices

numbers were recorded in the last 30 days.

Google CEO Sundar Pichai stated during the press event that Android devices have Android has doubled in the last year in India and Vietnam. He also revealed that since the budget-based Android One smartphones launched in Turkey a month ago, they have since become the top-selling Android phone in that country.

Pichai also said that Chromebooks are on track to become the single-largest platform in schools, with 30,000 new Chromebooks activated each day. In addition, 10,000 companies have been testing and deploying Android for Work. Finally, Google Play now has 1 billion active users in the last 30 days

Great. Too bad my iPhone apps outsell my Android apps 6 to 1. It's ridiculous. Why don't Android users buy
apps??!!

Android users do
buy apps. It's just
we have so many more users than
"IDIOTS-OS" so our number comparison gets smaller.

Well I buy apps, and go for the paid version sometimes even if I don't need it. The exceptions are where the free version is better because the dev rewrites the code and it comes out bloated or buggy.

There are so many free apps that achieve great things on the Play Store that many paid apps aren't needed. They are usually just donations to the developers. Apple users are already used to paying a premium for hardware so it's not difficult to expect them to pay for apps that would be free in the Play Store.
